WORSE FOR TURKEY.

Bulgaria Refuses to Obey Her Dictations

And Indicates a Desire for Independence.

Greeks Penetrate Turkish Territory at Elassona

And Drive the Sultan's Forces Back.

Greek Soldiers Marching Bravely Upon Janina.

Turkish Soldiers Join in an Insurrection in Albania, Adding to the Woes of the Sultan and His Government.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24. — As previously announced in these dispatches, the Turkish government, some days ago, called upon Bulgaria, as the vassal of Turkey, to break off all diplomatic relations with Greece and to expell the Greek consuls and Greeks from Bulgarian territory. The Bulgarian government took the matter under consideration and, it is now announced, has declined to comply, declaring that she will observe neutrality during the war between Turkey and Greece. This refusal of Bulgaria to acknowledge her vassalage to Turkey is regarded as being a very important departure, and as foreshadowing the declaration of the independence of Bulgaria. The ambassadors of the powers, at a meeting just held, have decided to address identical notes to the Turkish government asking that the Greeks employed by the foreign ministers, consulates and hospitals and all Greek ecclesiasts be permitted to remain in Turkey.

The ambassadors also propose that the foreign consulates use their good offices in behalf of the Greeks who represent the interests of the foreign capital and finally, they will recommend that in any case, the Turkish government should observe moderation in carrying out the expulsion of the Greeks. The question is a very serious one, as at Constantinople alone there are 40,000 Greeks and throughout Turkey there are 200,000 Greeks. Fears are expressed that disturbances will occur during the Greek Easter tide, which begins today. Nevertheless a notice was read in all the mosques yesterday enjoining the Turks not to molest the peaceable Greeks, the war being a matter between the two armies. Izzet Bey was unexpectedly summoned to Yildiz Kiosk yesterday and it is now supposed the sultan has reinstated him as his favorite and second secretary.

Arabs in Thessaly.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24.—The latest advices from the seat of war indicate that the Greek forces have penetrated into Turkish territory, reaching the rear of Elassona, on the Mount Olympus side, which is most serious news for the Turks, if true. The divisions of the Turkish army stationed at Monastier and Salonica are about to start for Elassona.

ATHENS, April 24.—A cabinet council lasting a long time was held here last evening. Official news received from the Greek commander in Thessaly, Prince Constantine, says that a battle is proceeding around Mati. Up to 5 o'clock last evening the Turks had been repulsed. No further information has yet been received of the results of the subsequent fighting.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 24.—An insurgent band has entered Macedonia under a leader who was recently placed under surveillance. Other insurgent bands have gone north with the intention of crossing the frontier, working round and meeting the first insurgent band in Macedonia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24.—Edhem Pasha telegraphs that on Thursday the Korkoin division of the Turkish army pursued the enemy an captured a quantity of ammunition, provisions and rifles. The dispatch adds that a portion of the fifth division, occupying Diskata, firmly maintained its position, inflicting considerable loss on the enemy and captured two prisoners.

Finally the Turkish commander-in-chief announces that there was also fighting at Mita on Thursday and that a sharp fusilade began at Tchay-Hissar at 11 o'clock that night.

ATHENS, April 24.—NOON.—The Turks at noon yesterday strongly attacked Mati, which was defended by General Mastopho's brigade. After six hours fighting a council of war, presided over by the crown prince, decided to order the retreat of the Greek forces from Tyrnavos. The retreat was effected in good order. Ricotti Garibaldi has arrived here. He was recorded an enthusiastic reception.

LONDON, April 24.—Special dispatches received this afternoon say that after a desperate battle at Mati, the Greeks, who were outnumbered, retreated with heavy loss, abandoned Tyrnavos and Larissa and removed their headquarters to Pharsalos, a small town on the right bank of the Pharsalitis and at the north foot of a spur of the Chasidiari mountains. Pharsalos is about twenty miles due south of Larissa.

ATHENS, April 23.—4 P. M.—The following semi-official announcement was made this afternoon:

"In a fierce engagement at Mati yesterday the troops fought heroically until 6 o'clock in the evening and compelled the Turks to retreat, whereupon the Turks were heavily reinforced and our positions were shaken and a retreat was ordered. It is not yet known if the recreat was general."

A second dispatch from the headquarters staff says: "Our troops are concentrated along the line of Pharsalais, in consequence of these operations the abandonment of Tyrnavos and Larissa being considered inevitable."

Campaign in Epirus.

LONDON, April 24.—According to special dispatches received here today an insurrection has broken out in Albania. The Turkish troops are said to be participating in the revolt.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24.—The news received here from Epirus is most serious. The Greek division which defeated the Turks at Filippiada is continuing its march on Janina, near which place a strong Turkish force is gathered and an important battle will most likely be fought. The most alarming news received from Epirus is that four battalions of Albanians, belonging to the Luros division of the Turkish army, have mutinied and are said to have deserted to the Greeks.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24.—An official dispatch, dated today, from the Turkish commander of the army corps at Janina, Epirus, announces that after a desperate battle, lasting over seven hours, the Turks have captured Fort Beshponnar, where the Greeks were entrenched, after crossing the frontier and advancing along the River Luro.

ATHENS, April 24.—A dispatch received from the Greek commander in Epirus, Colonel Manos, announces that the Greeks have occupied Kastelnos, near Stevrina. The Greek scouting parties have reached points close to Fort Ponte Pegadia. The Greek squadron, which bombarded Santi Quaranta, left Corfu yesterday morning and on arriving in the bay of Santi Quaranta immediately formed in line of battle. The warships were spread out fan shape and the torpedo boats occupied points of vantage.

Fire was opened with the liveliest kind of a commando for two hours, the great destructiveness which was soon observed in dismantled buildings everywhere, while the flames broke out in many places. The fire of the Greek gunners was directed most admirably and no ammunition was wasted. The Turkish garrison, at about noon, was seen to have sought refuge in the fort. The Turks were supposed to number about 600 men. The Greek naval commander then decided to land a detachment and complete the destruction of the large quantities of food stored there for the use of the Turkish forces in Epirus. The bombardment by the fleet was discharged upon, and under this fierce fire a detachment of Greek sailors was landed and immediately proceeded to destroy the stores of the Turks, beginning with 1,600 sacks of flour, which were found on the quays. After rapidly completing this work, while the fleet imposed silence on the fort, the Greeks set fire to the remaining storehouses and destroyed large quantities of munitions of war which had been collected for the use of the Turkish forces in Epirus. After this work was completed the Greek sailors returned to their ships, leaving the whole place in flames and bringing with them fifty Christians, who had hoisted a white flag over a house in which they had collected. The Greek gunners took special care to avoid hitting this building. The casualties of the Greeks throughout the bombardment and the subsequent landing and destruction of the Turkish stores were two sailors wounded.

Will Bombard Salonica.

BERLIN, April 24.—The correspondent of the Staats Zeitung, of New York, has cabled the following message to his paper:

"The war news causes excitement here, and particulars are eagerly awaited. It is expected that the Greek fleet will bombard Salonica, in which case the powers will have to provide for the safety of their legations and warships of the powers will be sent there. Austria has already ordered the battleship Kron Prinzess Stefani to that port. The report that Grumbkow Pasha, the well known German officer, who, with Remton Pasha, reorganized the Turkish artillery, would lead the artillery to the frontier, is not true. Grumbkow Pasha went to the scene to observe the fighting for the sultan from an independent point of view."

Edhem Pasha Wounded.

ATHENS, April 23.—It is rumored here that Edhem Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, has sustained a wound which he received in the recent fighting with the Greeks in the Milouna Pass. It is further announced in a special dispatch that the Turkish troops are leaving Crete for an unknown destination.

Turks Leave Crete.

CANEA, Island of Crete, April 23.—The negotiations of Colonel Famin with the insurgents of Skia have been successful. The insurgents agree to lay down their arms on condition that the Turkish garrison leaves Sitia.

GREEKS AT PRAYER.

Solemn and Patriotic Observance of Holy Friday.

They Ask for Divine Blessing Upon Those Who Have Gone to Defend the National Honor.

ATHENS, April 24.—The Holy Friday procession here yesterday was one of the most dramatic incidents of the war, moving vast crowds of Athenians on an overwhelming wave of emotion. The various processions, all carrying lighted candles, converged at about 2 o'clock in the morning on Constitution square. As seen from a balcony above the sea of heads the spectacle was fairy like. As far as the eye could reach there were myriads of lights and all around was solemn silence. The metropolitan, robed in gorgeous golden vestments and wearing a resplendent gold tira, headed the procession of the clergy in the center of the square, the choristers chanting prayers in unison. A moment later the metropolitan in a loud voice, broken by deep emotion, prayed with uplifted eyes for those who had "gone to defend the national honor and fight for the glory of the cross." All heads were bared and all eyes were streaming with tears as the metropolitan pronounced the benediction. The metropolitan returned to the cathedral, where a solemn mass was celebrated, and all those who had taken part in the processions proceeded either to the churches or to the Cathedral to take part in the religious services. The king and queen of Greece and the whole official world were present at the Cathedral mass. The metropolitan repeated the prayer for the soldiers, imploring the Almighty to bestow his blessing upon those whose bones are shadowed by the angel of death."

A NEW MAN.

Kentucky Republicans Put Up Another Mark.

Ballot Reported by the Caucus, But Balked in the Meeting of the Joint Assembly.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 24.—The republican senatorial caucus last night resulted in the nomination of Dubois as successor to Senator Blackburn. Dubois is fifty years old, a native of Crittenden county, where he was a practicing physician for a number of years. His first political prominence was his election to the state senate four years ago.

In the joint session it was demonstrated that Dubois was little, if any, stronger than Hunter, and the republicans were brought to a realization of the fact that the perplexing question of a successor to Blackburn was as far from a solution as ever. The first ballot fell four votes short of electing Dubois.

There was a scene of the wildest excitement when it finally became known that Dubois had been knifed and the galleries and even the members of the legislature lost their dignity for a moment. An adjournment was moved and carried, but there was the deepest feeling manifest on all sides.

GOES TO GREECE.

General Miles Will be a Spectator of the War.

Leaves in May for Constantinople and Thence to the Stirring Scenes of the Battlefield.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—General Miles has been notified of the president's approval of his projected visit to the seat of war in Europe. He will leave Washington early in May, probably taking passage on the St. Paul from New York. At Paris the general will board the Oriental express and go through without a stop to Constantinople. His future movements will depend entirely upon the progress of the war, but it is his intention to keep as near as possible to the scene of actual hostilities, so that he may be in either camp. General Miles will be accompanied by Capt. M. H. Hans, of his personal staff, and they will carry full credentials from the government.

DEAD IN A FIELD.

Uncle and Niece End an Illegal Love Affair.

Couldn't Marry and They Preferred Death to Life in Any Form But That of Husband and Wife.

QUINCY, Ill., April 24.—Wakeman Haines and Lizzie Hudson, uncle and niece, aged twenty-three and sixteen respectively, who eloped together from Lorsine village last Sunday, were found dead, locked in each other's embrace in a pasture lot two miles from Loraine this morning. They had taken strychnine and died together. They had been going together until the community began to talk about their illegal love. Then they apparently determined to end their lives. They were of well known families and were prominent young people of the community.

HUNTING A THIEF.

Police Searching for a Man Who Stole a Mileage Book.

This afternoon the police are hunting for a thief who stole a mileage book from the pocket of an employe of the Wayne hotel. The officers have a good description of the fellow—in fact, know who he is—and have located the book, but had made no arrest up to the time THE SENTINEL went to press this afternoon.

WHERE IS HE?

The Sheriff and Police Fail to Locate a Russian,

Who Jumped Out of a Window at St. Joe Hospital Last Monday Night—He Had Money.

For several days Sheriff Melching and the police force have been searching for a Russian, who, last Monday night, for some reason unknown, jumped from a window at St. Joe hospital and ran away.

A couple of weeks ago the fellow, whose name is not known, was brought to the city from Eel River township, where he had been acting peculiarly for some time. He had been in the employ of a farmer and was discharged. Two days later he was found in the woods half starved, and ill from exposure to the elements. On his person was found $460, part in Russian money and part in American money. He was taken to the St. Joseph hospital and remained there until Monday when Sheriff Melching notified him that he intended to send him back to Russia. The fellow did not seem to relish the idea and some time during the night he jumped from a window and although the sheriff and police have searched everywhere imaginable heretofore for him they have been unable to find even a trace of where he is.

Sheriff Melching still has possession of the money and he believes now that the Russian has some good reasons why he does not care to go back to his native country and has run away to keep from being sent back.

GREECE WILL WIN

Unless Turkey Can Bring the War to a Speedy End.

Incapacity of the European Concert Admitted and Its Conclusions Can Now Be Ignored.

LONDON, April 24.—Unless Turkey can bring the war to a rapid termination the triumph of Greece cannot be prevented, is asserted in quarters here in which the real situation is thoroughly understood, especially the desperate state of the sultan's finances. Thereforo Osman Pasha, the hero of Plevena, has been sent to the front, with orders to strike a daring, decisive blow without loss of time.

That a panic is prevailing at the Yildiz Kiosk is plainly shown, too, by the sudden despatch of the Russian envoy from Constantinople to Sofia to stay the unmanning demands of Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria, which the porte is afraid to refuse or concede.

The situation is deemed to be supremely critical and unless Osman Pasha can gain a conspicuous triumph the catechism of Constantinople, which the powers have disgracefully compromised themselves in trying to prevent, may commit any moment.

In ministerial circles here, where a quick defeat of Greece was regarded as the surest and least unsafe solution of a highly dangerous complication, the new developments are causing consternation. The increase of popular sympathy of Greece caused by the gallant conduct of her troops following the first defeats, has amounted to a revulsion. The incapacity of the European concert is at last universally admitted, and its conclusions can now be safely ignored.

King George, after great efforts, has saved his people and can now afford to be moderate. Speedy peace may be expected, both on the frontier and in Crete. The prevalent feeling here undoubtedly was that, as Greece had followed a provocative policy, she would be prepared to pay the penalty.

In ministerial circles and the anti-ministerial press little concealment was made of the hope that the campaign would be short, sharp and decisive, but the events of this week have produced a marked modification in these sentiments, added probably by a growing suspicion that Russian diplomacy is egging Turkey on with an eye to some big ornamental coup to British interests.

The confident anticipation that the Turkish army would make short work of the Greeks has been signally falsified, and now the recall and disgrace of Edhem Pasha for the belief that such success as he had gained was far less substantial than had been represented and at a cost of life and morale to the Turkish forces little short of disaster.

It happens that a bye-election for parliament has been unexpectedly sprung in the Crewe division of Cheshire by the resignation of the tory member, and the liberal candidate, a nephew of John Bright, has boldly declared that he will make his campaign on the Greek question. The constituency consists mainly of railway operatives, inimicable wholly prejudiced with their own special interests.

If the liberals can carry the seat by a good majority it will compel the government to modify its eastern policy in favor of Greece. A fiery wirkery on the other hand will strengthen the hands of the minister in maintaining it. There is no mandate from the English people that England should do anything beyond conserving her own interests. Therefore the situation has suddenly become one of momentous importance, not only to Greece and Turkey, but to the British government.

RESTRICTS THE TERRITORY

General Harrison to Preside at a Meeting in Favor of Home Rule.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 24.—Twenty-one pastors, embracing the various protestant denominations, have joined in a call for a public mass meeting next Tuesday, over which it is expected that General Harrison will preside, looking to the enforcement of the so-called Moore bill in the residence portion of the city, by which the saloon will be barred. Under this bill saloons can be restricted to the business portion. The territory sought to be exempted embraces several square miles within the city limits, and also takes in the suburbs of Brightwood and North Indianapolis, where saloons and roadhouses are numerous.

He came here from Gosport fifteen years ago and was one of the leading doctors of the county. Financial troubles caused the act.

LUDICROUS FARCE.

Pugilistic Contests of the Athletic Club at San Francisco.

Referee Cook Roundly Hissed for His Decisions—Big Crowd Witnesses the Tights.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—A fiddling four-round bout, a clever lightweight contest of twenty rounds and a ludicrous farce was the entertainment put up last evening by the National Athletic club to a crowded house, at Woodward's pavillion.

Hiram Cook acted as referee and was roundly hissed in his decision in the first fight, between Rubenstein and Cooney, which was awarded to the former. It was all Rubenstein's fight up to the last half of the last round, and, though Cooney had the better of it after that, Cook's decision was incorrect under the rules.

The event of the evening was the twenty-round contest between Jimmy Barry, of Chicago, and Jimmy Anthony, of Australia. A clever fight was put up by the bantams and though it was Barry's all the way through, Anthony seemed dangerous in every round, as he finished practically as strong as he began, while Barry was noticeably tiring, though he made a lively finish. The Chicagoan got the decision. Barry can certainly lay claim to quick for Anthony and the Australian did not get in a single effective blow. On the other hand, Barry frequently rained swing after swing on the Australian's jaw, but the blows either had no force in them or Anthony is a wonder to stand punishment. It is certain that there was no stamp behind many of Barry's blows. He is the perfection of activity, and had no trouble in finding Anthony's jaw, but that is all the good it did him.

In a boxing contest that was all that was necessary, and the fact that Anthony kept forcing Barry to walk backward around the ring counted but little in his favor. Anthony had but one mark on him at the end of the fight, a cut back of the left eye, while Barry had red spots and scrapes all over his body. In the beginning of the fight Anthony tried to rush Barry and the latter cleverly ducked or swung his left on Anthony's jaw. Many of the rounds were uneventful, but Barry was cleverly outpointing his man all the time. In the last four rounds Anthony tried to rush Barry and ran against a rain of blows that stopped his aggressive work. Barry's remarkable ability saved him and gave him the power to reach Anthony's face whenever there was a mix-up.

The ten round go between Bob Armstrong and Sam Pruitt was a howling farce. Both are colored men. Armstrong is supposed to be of championship mettle, but there was no opportunity of seeing him up last night. Pruitt seemed to be full of nerve or something else as he came forward. His legs and shoulders were bare and his skin shone like Cashmere Bouquet after a coconut bath. When he came to the scratch Armstrong struck him several lefts in the face and on the body. Pruitt looked reproachfully at Parson Davies' novice. When he got a punch in the stomach that settled it, for Pruitt walked to his corner and told the referee that the thing had gone far enough. The exhibition, which lasted about five seconds, was of such a comical nature that the spectators roared with laughter. Only a handful of enthusiasts, who took pugilism seriously at all times, got mad.

In Two Rounds.

MADISON, Ind., April 23.—John Lowell and Horace Van Horn, local pugilists, fought ten rounds last night. Lowell won on a foul. A rematch from next Wednesday Peter Lacey, of Pittsburg, and James Blackwell, of Indianapolis, will fight.

Fred Kirbach, who resides with his family on Gay street, will leave next Monday for New York and thence to Germany, his native country, where he will reside in the future. His wife and children will follow as soon as Mr. Kirbach decides upon a location. He is one of the many Germans who have become dissatisfied with their situation in America and are ready to return to their native country.

BASE BALL.

Opening of championship season. Toledo vs. Fort Wayne, at Lakeside park, Tuesday, April 27. Game called at 3:15. 21-24

Last week the enterprising dry goods house of Wolf & Dessauer conducted a special sale, 2½ per cent. of the receipts of which were to be donated to the different orphan asylums of the city. As a result of the enterprise of Messrs. Wolf & Dessauer there were $102.15 to be divided among the several orphans' homes. This is the most practical kind of charity and these gentlemen are to be highly commended for their thoughtfulness for the fatherless.

THE CITY HALL.

POLICE NEWS.

Detective Colling has been following a supposed clue to the parties implicated in the drowning of the little babe in the St. Mary's river. It was a false one, however, and the officers are as far as ever from solving the mystery.

It was reported to the police that a wagon pole and neck yoke had been stolen from in front of 37 Wiehke street.

The bicycle supposed to have been stolen from Duryea street a few days ago turns out not to have been stolen at all. The owner had ridden it away himself.

There were two prisoners in police court this morning. Bill Thompson was sent to jail for fifteen days for drunkenness and George Clement, a train jumper, was released.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Fort Wayne Traveling Man Saves a Boy's Life.

E. K. Dorr Rescues a Lad Who Fell Under the Wheels of a Moving Train at Kokomo.

E. K. Dorr, of this city, the well known traveling man for a large Chicago tobacco firm, had an experience yesterday which he will not forget for many a long day. He was on the depot platform at Kokomo when a Lake Erie and Western train pulled alongside. Mr. Dorr was talking with the train. A boy about twelve years old tried to pass between Mr. Dorr and the train on the run, but accidently bumped against the gentleman and fell under the train. Mr. Dorr saw the lad fall and reaching down under the train pulled him forth before the trucks of the car passed over him. The train was moving slowly or the boy would have been crushed to death, and today he has only Mr. Dorr's presence of mind to thank that he is still among the living. The conductor of the train saw the boy fall and was surprised when he came to the scene and found that he had not been injured. Mr. Dorr was rather unconcerned at his brave act and did not even inquire the name of the lad.

Charles Schaub, a farmer living near Huntertown, left his team standing on Monroe street yesterday afternoon, just before the storm. The horses frightened at the thunder and ran away, spilling the contents of the wagon over the street and wrecking the vehicle. The runaway was stopped on Jefferson street. ROBISON PARK
Is Visited by a Party of Newspaper Men.
Many Improvements Being Made—Cars Begin Running Next Saturday—Season Opens June 1.
The newspaper men of the city made the first trip of the season to Robinson park yesterday, upon invitation of Charles W. Gerke, the secretary of the Consolidated Street Railway company, to inspect the improvements which have been inaugurated there, and, although rain was falling part of the time and the ride was made in an open summer car, the trip was a pleasant one to the pencil pushers who seldom get a rest from the grind of news hunting.
The party was under the care of O. L. Stanton, the superintendent of the company, and Louis Heilbronner, the park amusement manager, and the car was in charge of Conductor I. Wyatt and Motorman J. Thompson.
The trip out showed many of the improvements made in the track. The sharp curves, which some regarded as dangerous, have been lengthened and there is nothing to fear in an accident from this cause. Indeed the track is in splendid condition and perfectly safe.
On the road out the party stopped at the two big greenhouses of the company. They are filled with beautiful plants and flowers, many of which, as soon as the grounds at the park are in order, will be removed to the flower beds which are now being constructed there.
The work of improving the park had been unavoidably delayed and did not commence until a few weeks ago, but the newspaper men noticed many changes in progress. The big tract of ground at the entrance of the park will show the greatest change. Its barren surface has been laid with sod, beautiful flower beds constructed, three good sized lakes built, and handsome walks laid in every direction, thus rendering it a very attractive place.
There has been some new buildings put up, changes made in the boat landings and in the arrangement of the grounds and other improvements which THE SENTINEL has not space today to mention.
The company will begin running cars to the park next Saturday but the amusement season will not open until the first week in June when Manager Heilbronner will furnish the visitors at the park with some fine attractions.
The company will greatly increase the facilities for travel to the park this season. Twenty-five large summer open cars will be put on the track. They will run two and one-half minutes apart and will have the ability to land 1,200 people at the park entrance every hour.
Last year Robinson park was a grand breathing spot for Fort Wayne people and was largely patronized. It will be visited this summer much more extensively, because it is more attractive in every way.

Holman's Honesty.

In the death of Representative Holman, of Indiana, the house of representatives has lost one of its most useful members and the country a capable, upright and valuable public servant. He was a man of scrupulous honesty. He was absolutely incorruptible. For more than thirty years a member of congress, he died a poor man. The opportunities for self enrichment so often embraced by public men suggested themselves to him in vain. Beginning his congressional career at a time when bribery in high places was rampant, his rugged honesty resisted all temptations. He died poor in purse, but rich in the esteem of his fellow citizens.

In congress he was the uncompromising opponent of robbery and extravagance and he well earned the title of the watch dog of the treasury, which he bore so long. His doubtless objection to a meritorious appropriation occasionally, for the best of men make mistakes sometimes, but as a rule his effective objections were made in the interest of a wise public economy and well deserved the compliment paid him by the late Thomas A. Hendricks, who said that Holman was worth $25,000,000 a year to people of the United States as long as he stayed in congress.

There are too few men of the Holman stamp in congress at any time and they were never so scarce as now, when it is regarded as the chief duty of a congressman to get as many offices as he can for his clamorous constituents and as much money as possible to be expended in his district. Holman took a higher view than this of the duties of statesmanship, and his death will leave a gap hard to be filled.

Increases Their Efficiency.

The recent death of Congressman Milliken, of Maine, has served to call attention again to the policy of statecraft which has been pursued in that state. It has been said that none of its congressmen have been retired except for promotion or death, so that up to the time of Mr. Milliken's passing away there had been no change in the delegation of six senators and congressmen for fourteen years.

The two most conspicuous speakers of the house of representatives since the war have come from Maine—Blaine and Reed—and both men have been presidential candidates; the one for a period extending from 1876 to 1892, involving five national conventions, Reed then coming to the front as if by right of succession and having his state take him up for the presidency and indicating all Now England to follow. At the present time the speaker of the house, the chairman of the ways and means committee and the navy committee are all three from Maine.

No other state can point to a delegation holding together since 1883, as the Maine delegation has, both in the senate and in the house. The six names that have made up the list for fourteen years are Messrs. Frye and Hale in the senate, and Messrs. Reed, Boutelle, Milliken and Dingley in the house. Mr. Frye succeeded Hannibal Hamlin, who retired because of old age, declining to make that state a mere stepping stone to something higher, and Mr. Hale entered the senate four days afterward as the successor of James G. Blaine.

Taking the Maine delegation as a whole Eugene Hale is the dean in point of service having begun in 1871—or twenty-six years ago. Senator Frye followed him to Washington in 1873 and then came Thomas B. Reed in 1877, Nelson Dingley, jr., in 1881, and Charles A. Boutelle and Seth L. Milliken in 1883.

The effect of this long tenure of office has been to increase the efficiency of the congressional representation from Maine, to bring them into greater prominence and to make that state assume a more important political position than would naturally be expected. The plan seems a good one for any state to consider. Indiana has seen its benefit in the cases of Senator Voorhees and Congressman Holman, both of whom were retained in the national legislature for many years and both of whom were magnificently equipped for their duties and did their constituency valuable service.

Recalls a Notable Convention.

Of the "old guard" that was a prominent factor of democratic politics in Indiana so far back as 1856 only Senator Turpie and Judge Robert Lowry remain as survivors. All the others have been gathered to their fathers, says Editor John E. Stoll in his paper, the South Bend Times, and continuing he writes:

"David Turpie was that year made the democratic nominee for lieutenant governor; Judge Lowry presided over the stormy state convention that nominated the state ticket headed by Thomas A. Hendricks for governor and that sent an enthusiastic Douglas delegation to the Charleston convention. This convention was perhaps the most intense gathering of the kind ever held in Indiana. There was a bitter fight for supremacy between the followers of Stephen A. Douglas and those who rallied under the leadership of Jesse D. Bright and John A. Robinson, supporters of the Buchanan-Breckinridge wing of the party. Any number of men were in that convention armed with pistols and revolvers. That no actual collision of outbreak occurred is largely due to the impartial rulings and the firmness and dignity of the presiding officer, Judge Lowry. It was truly a remarkable convention, the like of which was never before, nor after, witnessed in the state of Indiana."

The Sewall family, of Bath, Maine, is politically constructed on the plan of the coon trap, to catch 'em comin' or goin'. The father may be beaten, but the family isn't left.

Harold Sewall was quite active in opposition to the ticket on which his father was the candidate for vice president and probably contributed to the success of the McKinley ticket in Maine. His services are now recognized by his appointment as minister to Hawaii.

He has had some consular experience in the Pacific and elsewhere, having represented the United States in Samoa during the complications there and made himself particularly offensive. Mr. Baynal regarded Samoa as beyond the natural sphere of influence of the United States and was not favorably disposed to the entangling alliance with European powers that had been entered into there, but Mr. Sewall had an aggressive policy of his own and exploited it so freely that his assignment was limited.

He is probably sent to Hawaii with some view to the reopwal of the annexation scheme. The statesmen of Maine, for some reason, perhaps because they are farthest away—have taken a particular interest in Hawaii, and the younger Sewall is understood to have similations in the filibustering line.

A. M. Nestor, of Menominee, Left Them a House and $2,000.

MENOMINEE, Mich., April 24.—A. M. Nestor, who had worked in the Menominee saw mills for the last thirty years, died Wednesday. After the funeral a will was found among his effects which bequeathed to Axel Johnson and his wife, who lived in a house belonging to Mr. Nestor, and who had cared for him in his declining years, the property, and $2,000 in money, which he had in a local bank.

To Succeed Congressman Holman.

MADISON, Ind., April 24.—Marcus D. Suber, of Jefferson county, will probably be the republican candidate to fill the vacancy caused by Congressman Holman's death. Democratic aspirants are: William A. Johnson, of Dearborn county; Jason B. Brown, of Jackson; Nicholas Carnes, of Ripley; F. M. Griffith, of Switzerland; Joseph Mallock, of Jackson; John Overmyer and Lincoln Dixon, of Jennings.

MANY HEROES

Found Today in the Everyday Walks of Life.

Christians Leading Pure and Holy Lives, Despite the Jeers and Criticisms of the Disbelieving World.

To bravely meet death for religion's sake, as Stephen did, in the times of the apostles, and as many have done since his day, is a feature in human character which will command admiration so long as the world stands, but there was no more bravery or devotion to duty in it than is shown by thousands of christians who today are living pure and holy lives despite the jeers and criticisms of disbelieving friends and the temptations of the world. It is an easy matter for some, surrounded as they are by christian environments and helpful influences, to lead religious lives, but for many men in this big, busy, wicked world, mingling as they do, and, in many instances must, with its evils and facing its corrupting influences almost every day, it means something to be a follower of the humble Nazarene, and in being so they exhibit just as much moral courage as Stephen did. Heaven is full of heroes like Stephen who, with brave hearts and unflinching cheeks, have marched to the burning stake or the gibbet, but in that celestial abode they will not wear any brighter crown than that Christian who, in the every day walks of life, has done his duty in spite of the influences that surrounded him and the obstacles that stood in his way.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Women's Presbyterian Board of Missions Meets in Rock Island.

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Women's Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions of the Northwest, was held in the Broadway Presbyterian church at Rock Island, Ill., Tuesday evening, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Mrs. D. B. Wells and Mrs. J. O. Kohr attended as delegates from this city and the latter furnishes The Sentinel with the following account of the meeting:

Several hundred delegates from abroad were in attendance and the meeting throughout was one of unusual interest.

Six of the board's missionaries from foreign fields were present and their interesting addresses were heard with wrapt attention, among them being Dr. Mary Bradford, Persia, whose brave and successful work during the cholera siege of a few years ago gave her world-wide fame, and Dr. Mary Brown, who spoke with thrilling interest of her itinerating tours in China.

To the Indiana delegates, sweet Miss Shaw, of Japan, spoke of the consecrated work in Japan of Miss Garvin, who went out fourteen years ago from the Westminster Presbyterian church of this city, and Miss Doty, from Korea, of the courage and spiritual mindedness of Rev. S. A. Moffett, of Korea, in whom the First Presbyterian church of this city is specially interested.

Indiana's "every one" missionary will certainly have the prayers of all the delegates who attended that meeting, in her six weeks' trip up the river from Bangkok, Siam, to her station among the Laos.

Miss Baho, from Africa, spoke and her remarks and quaint sayings "brought down the house." A most impressive hour was the hour the missionary candidates, who were sent out during the year, were introduced to the audience and made short addresses and received their charge from a member of the board.

Rev. Hunter Corbett, for thirty-three years a missionary in China, spoke most interestingly, and brilliant Dr. Billis, of Chicago. Professor Ewing's successor, delivered an eloquent address.

This board has 1,233 auxiliary societies, supports ninety-one missionaries and its contributions average $75,000 each year.

Rev. J. R. Donaldson, of Davenport, Iowa, whose congregation assisted in entertaining the delegates sent greetings to his Fort Wayne friends. His father was for many years pastor of the Bluffton and Goshen Presbyterian churches. Rev. Donaldson assisted in conducting the communion services, which closed the meeting and Indiana delegates were not only proud of her missionaries, of her mission workers, of her Women's Home, of her well organized missionary work, so often mentioned, but proud of the ministers she has given to the Presbyterian church.

PLUNKET GREENE.

The Eminent Irish Basso at the Temple Tonight.

The eminent Irish basso, Plunket Greene, the James Whitcomb Riley of music, will give a song recital at the Masonic Temple theater this evening under the auspices of the Morning Musical. Mr. Greene is justly considered the greatest bass singer in the world, a broad assertion to make, but one easy to prove by hearing him. In speaking of the ovation that was given him recently in Boston, the Transcript says:

"He is a real delight to hear Mr. Greene sing. One can recognize in him a true artist in temperament, perception and nobility of aim. But his ideal is high and he shows a fine determination to live up to it artistically. He shows in his programs that he not only likes his means to hold by what is good and worthy in music—a not too common trait in singers of his age and (if we may be pardoned for saying so) of English affiliations. Our experiences may not be unlimited, but he is the first singer from the Three Kingdoms we have heard who resolutely turns the cold shoulder upon that woeful class of songs which make one wish to inscribe 'Laissez ogni speranza, voi ch' entrate!' on the doors of most 'musical' drawing rooms in English speaking countries. He does not sing pot-boilers. We were particularly delighted to hear him sing the Handel song—one of the brilliant, robust, brass songs of the great master—after his singing of 'Honor and Arms' in Samson. One must compare his singing of these songs by the same master to see how fine the man's artistic sense is. His singing of 'Honor and Arms' was splendidly effective. He unlocked the song and gave in its true character, and yet it was a pretty smooth piece of singing. One hoped the mountebanks might be inattentive; but one still had one's fears. Now he comes and sings another Handel song, just as brilliant, but the outpouring of a real hearing instead of a swashbuckler braggadocio of a low bully. All the uncouthness of style vanishes at once; he sings the song with admirable finish and purity. That means brains."

ROAD RECEIPT JUGGLING.

Developments at Decatur Show That Crooked Work Has Been Done.

DECATUR, Ind., April 24.—A peculiar state of affairs has just come to light in connection with the wholesale raising of road receipts in this county. At the last term of court a judgment was found against County Treasurer Dan P. Bolds for $600, and the present grand jury began an immediate investigation. Charles McCullough, cashier of the Hamilton National bank, of Fort Wayne, was called as an expert witness, and in his testimony he implicated an ex-county officer, who has taken an active part in the prosecution against Treasurer Bolds. The information has created great excitement and a thorough investigation of county affairs is talked of. This completely exonerates Treasurer Bolds, and he is anxious for an investigation.

Don't always ask your friend how his health is. It sometimes makes him tired. For a change ask him how his CARPETS are. Ask him where he got them. If he bought them from US well and good. They're all right. Congratulate him and ask no further questions. If he bought them elsewhere don't roast him, (it's just possible they may be good,) but speak to him calmly and try to persuade him that the Indiana Furniture Co. Carpets could not be poor, or even doubtful. They're a sure thing at fair price, which means they are as cheap as can be bought and wear well.

IN SECLUDED BROOKS.

The Delights of Hooking Speckled Trout.

UNCLE DAN'S PISCATORIAL LORE.

He Was Wise In the Ways of the Finny Tribe and Imparted the Secrets of Successful Angling to His True Disciples. The White Mountain Trout.

In April the law withdraws its protecting hand from the brook trout, and the wanton fisherman is left free to kill the speckled beauty as best he may. The law is "off" on the 1st, but it is well toward the middle of the month before the "water wakes" up out of the mountain brooks, and the ice does not go out of the Rangeleys and other northern trout haunts sometimes until well into May. The boys up in the Green and White mountains are probably still waiting for trout time, but in most other sections of the country tackle is being prepared and worms dug.

All this reminds me that I once took a course in trout fishing myself. Uncle Dan was my instructor. Mind, I do not say "my Uncle Dan," for there was no tie of kinship between us. He was Uncle Dan to the whole village. His should have had a more dignified title, say professor, for professor of piscatorial learning he certainly was. True, he was an unlettered man and knew not the natural history of books, but he knew the brook trout like a brother. What the trout liked to eat and when and how he liked, as well as when and where he played and rested, Uncle Dan knew as well as if he had been himself a trout and had passed months on the brook bottom.

At rare intervals Uncle Dan dispensed some of this great store of knowledge, but only to his ardent admirers and faithful disciples. I was among those favored ones. After the stately philosophers of old, Uncle Dan used the fields and woods for his lecture room, and the brooklets were his rostrum. Humility, docility and very great modesty in quantities were the rules of tuition he expected. I gave them gladly and threw in unbounded admiration.

Perhaps I learned something about trout fishing myself, but I have never dared to express that opinion, and I hesitate to do so now. Uncle Dan never would admit that I did. Only by an absence of adverse criticism was I encouraged to hope that a man was properly made, a stolen slightly canonized or a landing accomplished according to the code. Once or twice I have received off alone and caught a fine mess of trout, but it was always with a guilty feeling that there had been something improper in the doing of it, and I never boasted before Uncle Dan of my success.

That which I could forget the infinite scorn and contempt with which I glanced over my hit when I presented myself for my first lesson. I had a 16 foot pole of jointed ash adorned with brass ferrules and a big brass click reel, while hook of fine, gaudy as the birds of a Brazilian forest, and a line stout enough for cod.

"Goin after pickerel or bullheads?" inquired Uncle Dan.

I protested that he had agreed to go trout fishing with me.

"Wual, you don't need a derrick to pull in trout with," roasted Uncle Dan. "He might ketch a trout with one of them hooks, but it would be an accident. As for that lines hand on yer pole, the noise of it might amuse the trout, but it won't fashion 'em for swallowin yer bait."

A NEW ENGLAND TROUT POOL.
[From a photograph.]

Uncle Dan put the pin on the whole outfit. That pole was too long and too heavy; the line too thick and the flies entirely out of season.

"Worms is what we want, and I've got 'em. There's a dozen white grubs in that pint pail, Sewell."

Uncle Dan had been busy with the spade at sunrise. He gave me an eight foot trout pole with a stiff line, a lancewood tip and a black rubber reel that fair maddened me and was clamped to the very butt of the pole, not half way up the first joint. It was as flexible as a willow wand and light as a feather. When we came to bait, I began to load up the short shanked hook with what is commonly known as "gob" of worms.

"Be ye goin' to fish for sole?" remarked Uncle Dan. Then he took off the worms off and put on a single one, covering the hook nicely, but leaving about an inch of worm dangling down in a Hibbian manner.

"A trout has more sense than ter expect worms ter come floatin down stream in gobs," said he.

I wanted to hunt for a deep pool, but Uncle Dan said it was too early in the day. I learned that before the sun began to shine strong on the water the trout sought their food in the rapid, shallow waters, and Uncle Dan pointed out just the spot where there probably would be a big fellow lying head up stream on the watt for any choice morsel that the current might bring along. Under Uncle Dan's direction I made a cast up stream and let the bait float down. Sure enough, there was a trout there, but at the first nibble I put the whole strength of my arm into an upward jerk of the pole and got—nothing.

It was then Uncle Dan showed me how to make a proper strike. He caught me the quick inward sweep of the wrist which will so surely hook a trout. But it was not all done in one lesson. The impulse to yank the line into the air with a vicious swish was a hard one to subdue, although Uncle Dan eloquently pictured the commotion which such an event would make below water. My desire to "play" the trout was also checked. It might be well enough to try those tactics if we were fishing for salmon or black bass, Uncle Dan said, but there was no trout in that brook big enough to smash his tackle and there was no reason in frightening all the other fish in order to capture one.

I tried to absorb faithfully all of Uncle Dan's wisdom, but it was with indifferent success. His fishing was done with the skill of an artist. His eyesight was marvelous. No frost could break in a fenny shallow and escape his eye. It seemed as if he could see clear to the depths of the brook, and when he cast it was with unerring aim. It was no trick at all for him to make his hook drift around the corner of a bowlder and drop down temptingly just under the nose of a speckled pounder which was lying sulkily in the shade. With one finger on the line, he would drop the bait noiselessly into a deep pool at midday and bring out the prize trout of the lot.

He was a thorough fisher too. Uncle Dan did not thrash up and down the brook in any such haphazard manner as I have seen other fishermen do. He did it systematically and let no waty trout escape. Sometimes he would talk to the fish, and his old monologue sparkled with a dry humor that was delicious. But it was when the time for the fly fishing came that he became really eloquent. What invective he would use in denouncing the lures which the fly hook of the untutored amateur contained!

A RED CAST.

According to Uncle Dan, they were impossible creations, which nobody respecting trout would look at twice. Their gaudy colors particularly offended him.

I have seen trout caught with those same impossible flies, but it would have been rash heresy to admit as much to Uncle Dan.

There was a time, when I was a sort of undergraduate in Uncle Dan's piscatorial college, that I thought none but those who had the advantages of his tutorship could really enjoy trout fishing. I am convinced now that this was a mistaken, though very common notion, and through dewy meadows on a bright spring morning; the plunge through dripping, fragrant underbrush; the excitement which begins with the first nibble and does not end until the last speckled beauty lies sagging in the creel; the long walk home again; the anticipation and the realization of a platter of crisp, smoking trout—those are delights which even the veriest bungler and tyro may enjoy.

But when the trout are scarce and wary, then the skillful angler tastes the full sweets of victory, for nothing is more humiliating than to come back empty handed after a long day's tramp, especially when the same roof shelters a sportsman who has brought back a fine string from the same stream. I have fished several times in books which I believe had not known a trout for years, but these are occasions which I would rather not recall. I like to remember, however, a morning's quest I once had in the heart of the White mountains. That little brook we could step over with ease, yet in a little more than an hour Dan and I caught the dozen trout of fair size and with the comfort kind of tackle too.

The United States government has recognized the virtues of the White mountain brook trout and each year stocks streams in various western states with the spawn. This is a noble work, for the New Hampshire trout is the most beautiful fish that swims, and when he is fried in salt pork and cornmeal makes the faintest sacrifice that the water furnishes to man.

FOR VETERANS' WIVES.

A Home Erected by the Women's Relief Corps.

Much has been done for the veteran soldier no longer able to take care of himself, but little notice has been taken of his wife or the other relatives dependent on him. New York state, however, has just completed a home which meets this want. It is known as the Women's Relief Corps home, because it would not have been built had it not been for the efforts of the New York state branch of that organization. More than this, it is to be managed by a woman, and women managers of public institutions are seldom found.

The Relief Corps home is a handsome, substantial brick building located at Oxford, N. Y., a pretty little village in the Chenango valley. The act authorizing its erection was passed by the state legislature in 1894, an appropriation of $70,000 for the purpose was made a year later, and the building is now practically finished, as will accommodate 65 persons, including officers, but four more buildings just like the present one are to be erected in time. Here the dependent old soldier may retire with his aged wife, and instead of the old couple being separated, one going to the home and the other to the poorhouse, they can pass their declining years together. Mothers and widows of veterans and army nurses are to be received here also.

Mrs. Ellen M. Putnam of Buffalo, who has been chosen superintendent of the home, has been connected with the enterprise ever since its inception. She has been an active member of the Woman's Relief Corps ever since that order was organized, and when, in 1894, the first board of managers was appointed for the home Mrs. Putnam was one of the number. There were six women and three men on the board, and Mrs. Putnam was chosen president. She displayed so much executive ability and enthusiasm in the manner of discharging her duties that her fellow managers insisted that she be appointed superintendent. Mrs. Putnam was born in Buffalo and has taught school there for 24 years, being at the present time department principal of school No. 19.

MONARCH OF THE SEAS.

The New Iowa To Be Ahead Battleship Always.

The battleship Iowa, which recently made a record of 17 knots an hour on a speed test, is a veritable monarch of the seas. There is no warship afloat which she could not meet on the high seas in single combat and on equal terms. While she is not nearly so speedy as some of our cruisers and has not the big guns of the Indiana or Massachusetts she has an armament besides which that of the former is like a toy pistol to a cannon, and she would be as steady as a house in seas which would hurl the gun decks of the latter. The vessels of the Indiana class are intended for coast defense, while the Iowa is able to steam across into Asiatic waters and engage anything that comes along.

The Iowa is 360 feet long and of 72 feet beam. Every time she forces herself one length ahead she displaces 11,410 tons of water. Of her total weight, 6,000 tons is devoted to her armor, which ranges in thickness from 8½ inches to 16 inches. Besides her four torpedo tubes the Iowa's principal armament consists of four 12 inch guns mounted in two barbette turrets, one forward and the other aft. These turrets have protections walls of harveyized steel 16 inches thick, behind which the gunners are safe from almost any shot that can be hurled at them. On the sides of the ship she four smaller turrets, each of which contains two 8 inch rifled guns, which discharge 250 pound bullets that will pierce eight inches of steel at a distance of two miles.

In addition to these big guns there are six rapid fire guns, which discharge 93 pound shells with such rapidity that five of them can be kept in the air at the same time. Then in the Iowa's fighting tops are more rapid fire guns of smaller caliber, so that she could go into action behind a perfect hailstorm of shot and shell. The ship's twin screws are driven by triple expansion engines of 11,000 horsepower. A striking feature of the ship is her towering smokestacks, which rise 100 feet above her crate bars.

Rattlesnake Poison.

Forest and Stream says that some persons believe that, in addition to ejecting venom through their fangs, rattlesnakes have the power to throw off poisonous fluid. Some persons are also even to smell a snake some distance away.

Rattlesnakes sometimes enter the tents of western hunters and campers, crawl upon the sleeping man under the blankets and stay until the man is aroused by the scout, when they commonly run. Men have become paralyzed under such circumstances. Their comrades have discovered what was wrong by the smell and the bluish white of their comrades' faces. There has been many a case in which, divining the situation, a man's friends have gently lifted the blanket and shot the snake across the man's breast. After that there is always one man who is sure to say that the horsehair rope, over which snakes cannot crawl because of the little points of hair, is properly laid to keep snakes, particularly rattlesnakes, out of the tents.

CHICAGO LIKES THE NAME.

Carter Harrison Elected to the Office So Long Filled by His Father.

Carter H. Harrison is a name to conjure with in Chicago, for this is the sixth time the city has elected a mayor of that name. The present newly elected chief executive is the eldest son of the late Mayor Harrison, who was five times chosen to fill the office and who met a tragic fate at the hands of a crazy assassin while still in office. He was born in Chicago on the Harrison homestead 37 years ago and greatly resembles his popular father.

Although he has been in the field during many a hot political campaign this is Mr. Harrison's first experience as an officeholder unless his service as private secretary for his father in the mayor's office could be counted as such. He has been urged on previous occasions to accept nominations for this and other offices, but invariably refused.

After having taken a course in a German gymnasium and being graduated at Yale, Mr. Harrison practiced law for about five years in Chicago and then entered the real estate business in partnership with his brother. He accompanied the latter when he retired to take up arms of the world, and when Mayor Harrison purchased the Chicago Times, in 1891, he put his son in charge of the business office and afterward made him managing editor. Carter Harrison, Jr., remained in charge of the affairs of this powerful newspaper until his father was brought out in 1893 and the paper was consolidated with the Herald. Then, for awhile he retired from active business affairs and traveled abroad, but returned and once more engaged in the real estate business, with which he was still connected at the time of his present election as mayor.

In 1887 Mr. Harrison married Edith Ogden, daughter of Judge H. N. Ogden of the court of appeals at New Orleans. They have two children, Carter Harrison, Jr., "the chief," and Edith, who is about 9 years old. Mayor Harrison occupies a fine house at Schiller and Astor streets.

THE NEW NIAGARA.

Howard Gould Is to Have the Largest Yacht Ever Built.

Howard Gould is evidently just as enthusiastic a yachtsman as ever, for he has lately commissioned a Wilmington (Del.) firm to build him the largest pleasure craft ever constructed in America. But he has abandoned sail for steam, and his new craft will be a twin screw steel steamer, yacht rigged. It will be named the Niagara, after his famous 20 racer, with which he won so many sailing races in continental waters a couple of years ago.

The new yacht is to be 370 feet in length and will have a beam of 36 feet, which will make her larger than some of the new cruisers of our navy. She is not to be a speedy vessel, only 14 knots an hour being required of the builder, but she will be seaworthy enough to go around the world in with comfort. The list of supplies will be put into her, and with her coal bunkers full she can steam from New York around the British Isles and back again without stopping to coal.

It is plain that Mr. Gould means to spend a good deal of time on his new boat, for she is to be furnished with every known convenience and will be a veritable floating palace. The arrangement of her deckhouses and cabins is to be after the plans of Mr. Gould himself and will include some novel features in yacht architecture. On the upper or spar deck there will be a continuous house of steel 100 feet long by 16 feet wide. This will be covered by either teak or mahogany sheathing, the after part of which will be devoted to a glass inclosed observation room, which is something new on a yacht.

On the main deck will be a handsome dining saloon, a library, an armory, a billiard room, the owner's suit of rooms and the staterooms for guests. The finishings of all these rooms will be rich and handsome. Connected with each staterooms is a bathroom supplied with fresh and salt water, hot and cold. The yachts will be completed in April, 1898, and then Mr. Gould and a party of guests will go on a long cruise.

THE GILLETT GIRLS.

THEY ARE CALLED THE CORN QUEENS OF ILLINOIS.

They Are Practical Farmers and Finding Corn a Profitable Crop. They Stick to It. They Find Pleasure as Well as Profit in Farming.

Three of the largest and finest farms in the state of Illinois are owned by as many young women. The farms are located in Logan county, near Elkhart, and their owners are known as "the Gillett girls." They are Nina, Amy and Jessie, and they not only own their farms, but manage and operate them.

Their father, John B. Gillett, was one of the best known men in central Illinois, where he settled in 1858 and began buying up land. At the time of his death, nine years ago, he left 12,760 acres, which was divided up among his family. His widow, Mrs. Gillett, inherited the old homestead at Elkhart and 4,000 acres of land. Miss Jay, John P. Gillett, was given 4,300 acres, while Miss Amy and Miss Nina received 1,500 acres each and Miss Jessie 2,000 acres near Elkhart.

Probably Farmer Gillett never dreamed that his daughters would attempt to cultivate their broad acres themselves. But they did, and today two of them are known far and wide as the corn queens of Illinois. These are Nina and Amy, for while Jessie continued the business of stock raising which her father had established, they went in for corn on a big scale.

Of course they do not personally plant and hoe the corn. They secured a number of good farmers who live on the land and cultivate it on shares, but the farming operations are superintended by the young women in person, and each day during the season when active work is in progress they mount their favorite horse and ride out early in the morning to direct the work. Sometimes they ride 20 or 30 miles in a day, changing horses when necessary and stopping for luncheon at any one of the farmhouses they happen to be near when the noon hour comes. Stormy weather they do not mind a bit, for they have good, serviceable riding habits which a little rain will not hurt, though on fine days they assume the neatest of costumes.

When the girls began their work, there was a lack of fine horses in that section of the country. These were very wanted in order to raise more corn, and so they had a big ditch dug to drain the water off. The work was accomplished successfully, and the land which before was almost worthless is now worth $40 to $60 an acre. The average yield of corn in the United States is 25 bushels per acre, but last year Miss Nina's average was 90 bushels, and on the old lake bottom the yield ran as high as 125 bushels per acre.

Just at present the young women are having their land plowed and getting it ready for planting time. They will do long and hard work during the season, too, for after that they will probably make their trips and be home again before they may be on the Riviera, sauntering about Paris, resting in Rome or enjoying the climate of California or Mexico. They are enthusiastic travelers and manage to get away from home for two or three months each year, although they never neglect the corn crop to do so. They are very fond of life on the farm and protest that they find it far from dull.

"I would rather raise corn than anything else," says Miss Nina enthusiastically. "It is the great American crop and there is no grain that gives such a generous return from the seed. The rapid growth, the sturdy stalk and the large ear, with abundant grain, make it encouraging to the sower and a delight to the harvester. It is a beautiful plant too. Its stem is strong and stately, and its long leaves have curves and sweeps that give an indescribable charm of beautiful lines. There is no work I would rather do, and I believe a woman can succeed as well in farming as a man.

"How did we learn? Why, we were apprenticed in the business. When father was alive, we used to ride over the farm with him, and in this way we absorbed a great deal of practical information. Prosperous farming is like any other business. It requires knowledge, tact at managing help, skill in laying out work, incessant industry, good judgment in buying and good capacity for selling. We have learned, too, that if we want our work done well we have to look after it ourselves."

Both of the young women read the agricultural reports and papers, and for the best part of the year are much more interested in such publications than in those of fashion or fiction. They do not go in for experiments, but they know how to raise big crops of corn and sell them at profitable figures, so they stick to that. In short, the Gillett girls are content to be the corn queens of Illinois.

GIVES UP THE BATTLE.

Phebe Cousins Finally Concludes That Woman Is Inferior to a Baboon.

"Woman in public life will never prove satisfactory. She is naturally a homekeeper. I would advise all young women to marry and become housekeepers."

It was Phebe Cousins who voiced these sentiments, but not the Phebe Cousins whom the nation once knew as the foremost advocate of equal rights for women; but the bright, black eyed, beautiful young woman whose style of eloquence has changed. Gesticulation owned the cause to which she had given all her wonderful energy and talents, and she denounced those who had been her coworkers as failures and selfish untrue to principle.

"Three times I have cast women under fire," she said, "and so many times I have seen them fail, and that ignominiously." This declaration fell like a bombshell in the camp of the woman suffragists. "Aunt Susan" B. Anthony, Lillie Devereux Blake, Mrs. Granger and the others who are still field marshals in active service hasten to assure the public that Miss Cousins' desertion means nothing more than the wail of a disappointed woman and that "the cause" will not suffer. Perhaps so, but some may decide that Phebe Cousins has learned a great truth by bitter experience, that her final conclusion in regard to woman and the ballot is the wisest.

MONTICELLO.

Mr. Bryan's Plan to Buy the Home of Thomas Jefferson.

The proposition that the United States shall purchase Monticello and make a national possession of it, which William J. Bryan is urging with so much energy and enthusiasm, revives interest in the noble old Virginian estate which was the home of the first Democratic president and framer of the constitution, Thomas Jefferson. Mr. Bryan desires either an appropriation by congress to purchase the property or else a popular subscription by Democrats.

Monticello represents more than the mere place where a great man lived for a few years. It was Jefferson's home in the deepest sense of the word. He made Monticello what it is today, and he was often responsible for the appearance of the handsome abode for he spent four years in terracing the mountain on which it stands. The old mansion was built after plans drawn by Jefferson himself and under his personal supervision. The arrangement of each of the 27 big rooms was according to his designs, and even the weather vane which still swings through the points above the front portico was one of his fancies. The whole place, in fact, is redolent of the memory of the great statesman who could make a nail or mold a government with equal readiness.

After the death of Jefferson it was found that he had left many debts, and so Monticello had to be sold. The estate passed out of the hands of the Jefferson family entirely, but soon after it was purchased by Commodore Uriah P. Levy, officer in the United States navy and an ardent admirer of Jefferson. The present owner of Monticello is a nephew of the old commodore, Jefferson M. Levy, a wealthy New Yorker, who is very proud of his ancestor's record and of every foot of Monticello. The house and grounds are kept in perfect order and repair, and it is comparatively easy for visitors to obtain permission to visit the old mansion if they apply to the owner. Mr. Levy has been asked to sell Monticello before, but has always refused and is now reported to be as firm in his determination to over dicord for the benefit of the shirkers. Miss Holmes is now 67 years old, and is very happy to know that her remaining years will be passed in doing good for others.

In Coldwater, Mich., there is another aged person who is full of life and work and has attracted some attention from the fact that at the age of 83 she is in the possession of all her faculties and is still writing poetry. She is Mrs. Belinda Cheney, mother of a recent conviction of bloodshed, General Jackie accompanied Senator Mitchell, the state's prosecution, on his recent trip of investigation in Europe.

Charles Jackson Paine was born in Boston Aug. 26, 1849, and at the age of 20 was graduated from Harvard university. He entered the Union army as captain in the Twenty second Massachusetts volunteers Oct. 8, 1861. He was promoted to be ranger, then colonel, and at the siege of Port Hudson he commanded a brigade. Later he was appointed brigadier general and was brevetted major general. At the close of the war he entered upon the business of making a large fortune for several years, and he has been eminently successful in his efforts.

The other members of the money recognition, Senator Wetherbee and ex-Vice President Stevenson, are very well known.

THEY WOO THE MUSE.

TWO VENERABLE WOMEN WHO WRITE POETRY.

Alice Holmes, the Blind Poetess, Inherits a Fortune at the Age of Seventy-seven. Mrs. Celinda Cushman Writes Verses on Her Ninety-second Birthday.

For nearly 70 years Miss Alice A. Holmes of Jersey City has struggled in total blindness against poverty, and now, when she is about ready to give up the struggle, she has inherited a big fortune. Though blind, the Holmes is a poetess of some local celebrity, but she has been thus busily shorted from the fore which she has turned as a teacher of music.

Miss Holmes was born in Wintersing, county of Norfolk, England, in 1820, but at the age of 9 years her parents sailed for this country. On the way over Miss Alice contracted scarlet fever and her eyesight on the ship. She was quarantined in a house on Staten Island on landing. The physicians of that day did not know how to treat the disease properly, and she suffered terribly, her eyesight being affected.

For a few years after her recovery she was barely able to distinguish objects in sight. Then a quack doctor operated on her eyes, and instead of restoring her sight left her in total blindness. For five years she lived in a state of mental darkness, growing up in ignorance and groping helplessly about. Then she was admitted to the New York Institute for the Blind. There she studied for seven years, greatly acquiring the knowledge that has dispelled so much of the gloom of her life.

She learned to read raised letters and to write by pricking the outlines of the letters on paper. But in music she took the greatest delight and made rapid progress. It was found that she had considerable talent, and this was developed until she was the pride of the institution.

When came poverty, and Miss Smith left the institution to earn her own living. Soon she made the acquaintance of a young lawyer named Hollis with whom she was married. She was a fine musician and soon discovered that the man's good teacher as well. She secured pupils and for 25 years supported herself in this way. She also wrote the poetry which welled up within her, for her disposition had not been affected by adversity and misfortune, but remained sweet and sunny. Her poems mostly all treat of her affliction, because she wrote them for the purpose of making her readers acquainted with the trials and joys of her life.

In 1893 she published her first volume, which she called simply "Poems of Alice Holmes." The modest little book attracted

Mrs. Celinda Cushman, who is 92 years old, is another aged person who is full of life and work and has attracted some attention from the fact that at the age of 83 she is in the possession of all her faculties and is still writing poetry. She is Mrs. Belinda Cushman, and at a recent gathering of her children and grandchildren she read some verses which began as follows:

I'm ninety-two and old today.
My feeble wrinkled, old and gray.
Still I am here, and all may see,
In my right mind, myself all agree.

Love and Silence.

"You say you have brought me here to propose to me, but why do you want to go through it as deliberately?"

MINISTER TO TURKEY.

The Distinguished Career of Lt. James B. Angell.

Dr. James Burrill Angell, who has been appointed to the important post of United States minister to Turkey, is distinguished as an educator, a scholar, an author and a diplomat. For more than 25 years he has been president of the University of Michigan, and this is the third time he has been called from his post to enter the diplomatic service of his country.

Dr. Angell was born Jan. 7, 1829, in the town of Scituate, R. I. He is descended from the earliest settlers of the state, Thomas Angell, his ancestor, being a companion of Roger Williams. After being graduated at Brown university he traveled for two years in the southern states and in Europe and in 1851 returned to his alma mater to accept the chair of modern languages. While filling this position he contributed to the editorial columns of the Providence Journal, and in 1860 he resigned his professorship to take editorial control of this newspaper. He continued in the editorial chair until 1866 and made the journal through those stirring times with rare skill.

Then he was called to the University of Vermont as president, and for five years he labored with great success to build up that institution. It was in 1871 that he became president of the Michigan university at Ann Arbor. This institution was already in an experimental stage when he assumed control, but in the quarter of a century which he has been at its head it has been brought into the first rank of universities and today serves as a model for institutions of the kind which are supported by the state.

In 1879 Dr. Angell was appointed by President Hayes as minister to China and at the same time to act as one of the three commissioners to negotiate a new treaty with the Chinese government in regard to emigration from that land. It was a delicate task, but it was accomplished to the satisfaction of the Hayes administration in less than two months. Dr. Angell soon returned to his university duties, however, and there remained for two years and then returned to his university.

In 1880 Dr. Angell was again sent on a diplomatic mission. He was appointed by President Cleveland as minister to the court of Spain and negotiated a treaty with Great Britain for the settlement of the fisheries dispute.

As a contributor to standard and current literature Dr. Angell is well known. He has written for the leading magazines and articles to various literary magazines, but he has been so successful as a college executive that he is chiefly known by his work in that field.

TO PROMOTE BIMETALLISM.

Charles J. Paine, a Member of the New Monetary Commission.

General Charles J. Paine of Boston, who has been appointed a member of the monetary commission, which is soon to visit Europe in the interests of international bimetallism, is best known as the man who threw those defeated the American's cup that he was the successful skipper of the Puritan, and the Mayflower and Volunteer were constructed almost wholly at his own personal expense.

But nothing is only one of the directions of General Paine's busy life. By profession he is a civil engineer, but he is qualified by practice to rank nowadays, for he is a millionaire, with big railroad interests, and he has business fronts in a dozen states, commercial ones. He is a director in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy and several corporations—a dozen or in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and holds similar positions in other organizations.

In politics General Paine has taken a lively part since he became of age. He is a Republican and is a deep student of national and international finance. He was an intimate friend and associate of the late Professor Francis A. Walker, the financial authority and expounder of bimetallism. General Paine accompanied Senator Wolcott, the chief of the commission, on his recent trip of investigation in Europe.

Charles Jackson Paine was born in Boston Aug. 26, 1849, and at the age of 20 was graduated from Harvard university. He entered the Union army as captain in the Twenty second Massachusetts volunteers Oct. 8, 1861. He was promoted to be ranger, then colonel, and at the siege of Port Hudson he commanded a brigade. Later he was appointed brigadier general and was brevetted major general. At the close of the war he entered upon the business of making a large fortune for several years, and he has been eminently successful in his efforts.

The other members of the money recognition, Senator Wetherbee and ex-Vice President Stevenson, are very well known.

A WARD STATESMAN.

CAREER OF "HINKY DINK" MCKENNA, A CHICAGO ALDERMAN.

His Rise From a Bootblack to a Prosperous Saloon Keeper and Host of the First Ward—Distinctive In Stature, but Great in Mind.

An alderman who has been elected to represent the First ward in Chicago's city council is a man who not a few years ago was selling papers and shining shoes on the streets of that city. He is commonly known by the picturesque nickname of "Hinky Dink." His real name is Michael Kenna, but it is seldom used.

For some little time Hinky Dink has been the political leader in the First ward, and much has been said and printed in Chicago about his prowess at the caucus and on election day. He has had the reputation of being able to hold his supporters in line with an intractable and never failing grip, and those who did not know him personally pictured Hinky Dink as a big, fat, bald headed, red faced, burly, whisky ruffian who would be at home in a saloon brawl or a principle.

But H. Dink Kenna is a very different person. He is by no means fat, but at last reports he had been reduced by the rigors of the recent campaign until he weighed in at exactly 100. He is only 5 feet 4 inches in height, his cheeks are pinkish white instead of red, and his voice, far from being husky, would not strike terror to the heart of a setback. He is only 37 years old, and his blond hair is already turning gray, but it must be remembered that Hinky Dink was forced by circumstances to mature early in life, and he has borne adult cares on his narrow shoulders so long as his average mass of 50.

He parts his hair in the middle and wears upon his upper lip a little blond mustache, so that he might be mistaken for a dapper little dry goods clerk were it not for the hard look which sometimes comes into his eyes and the line about his face which tell plainly of cunning and shrewdness learned in the hard school of street life.

But what Hinky Dink lacks in size he made up for by his friend and colleague the Hon. "Bathhouse" John Coughlin. The two aldermen from the First ward weigh together 343 pounds, and of this total aggregate "Bathhouse" contributes 250 pounds. As the latter fondly remarks: "No, H. Dink ain't much on fat and muscle, but he's got a great scheme on his shoulders."

He is a remarkable sight when he dons his official robes and takes his seat for presiding himself elected a member of the Chicago city council. Begin in poverty amid the slums of the West Side, age 10 he found himself an orphan with two sisters and two brothers, all younger than himself. Hinky Dink—for he had already acquired that title—took charge of the very juvenile family and began peddling papers. His brothers began to work selling papers, while he himself started a little stand for the sale of fruit, which he could purchase and sell with a profit of a few cents per week

OHIO'S GRETNA GREEN.

The Little Town of Aberdeen a Matrimonial Mecca.

REFUGE FOR RUNAWAY COUPLES.

Two Old Squires Who United All Comers Without Legal Form or Authority—Now Many of Their Victims Wonder if Hey Are Really Wedded.

Opinion recently expressed by two eminent jurists regarding the validity of marriages contracted in Ohio by non-residents of the state bring up a question which involves the interests of tens of thousands of families over the United States. The situation is a peculiar one and is the result of the extraordinary laxity with which the marriage laws have been observed in the little town of Aberdeen, which lies on the Ohio river opposite Maysville, Ky. The ohio has provided

Previous to persons being joined in marriage notice is required to be published in the county of the consolidation on two different days of public worship, the first publication to be at least ten days previous to such marriage, within the county who to the female applying, a license shall be obtained on that persons from the probate judge in the county where such female may reside.

The passing of the above provision seems obvious enough, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. But probate judges throughout the state have come to be conservative it very liberally, holding that they could issue license to people coming from out of the state on their own responsible recollection of the law. The majority of the thousands of victims of the Aberdeen marriages have not even the shadow of pretext of a questionable license, however, on which to base their claims to holy wedlock. All they have or ever did have is a document purporting to be a marriage certificate and bearing the signature of a man who, in the eyes of the law, had no right whatever to perform such ceremony without a lawfully issued license.

The history of Aberdeen as a matrimonial center and the Meccas of harassed lovers is unique and interesting. It has been called the "Gretna Green of the Ohio Valley," the "Gretna Green of America," etc., but the term "Gretna Green" is plainly inadequate when applied to a place whose importance for caprels that of the little Scotch border town whose a certain runaway couples had fled from their angry parents. Everything in the latter place which were must to be sung by Scottish lassie, down to the original anvil priest in Aberdeen for a period of more than 75 years.

The popularity of Aberdeen as an elopement rendezvous dates back to the days of one Thomas Sheldon, or "old squire," as he is known in the annals of Aberdeen, in order to distinguish him from his successor, Squire Massie Beasley who will always be known and spoken of as "the Squire of Aberdeen."

It was in 1820 that Thomas Sheldon was elevated to the office of justice of the peace, then as now an important position in the social and political life of Aberdeen. He remained upon the bench until he began to set the marriage laws of the state at defiance. During the course of his regime, which endured continuously until his death in 1870, he married many thousands of eloping couples, but one of when is a matter of history.

But it remained for his successor, Massie Beasley, to give to Aberdeen the reputation it deserves of being the greatest Gretna Green on record. Squire Beasley was born in the same year that Squire Sheldon married the Coombs and Squire Beasley for the last of thousands.

The matrimonial traffic as carried on by Squire Beasley is something unprecedented. He continued in that business even since literally than his predecessor, and during his term of office, which extended over a period of 21 years, and which, like that of Squire Sheldon, ex-tered continuously until his death, he married more than 30,000 couples. A majority of these marriages ceremonies were performed without a license. As Squire Beasley's death in 1892 a stop was put upon the needless marriages at Aberdeen by the state's refusing a number of lawyers who took it upon themselves to follow the lucrative practice built up by the local magistrate.

Elopements have always been the life at the town, and there is not a man, woman or child therein who is not proud of Aberdeen's unparalleled record. The little country paper published in the village is called the Gretna Green Gazette, and the boat which plied between there and Maysville for 17 years was named the Gretna Green. It was on board this boat that many hundreds of eloping couples were married. This was a matter of accident in the case of Shelby, for it was only when the spirits was not to be found in his office or at the tavern he was strolling about the ferry landing or on board the boat itself.

Squire Beasley was in the business for all there was in it. He made no secret of it by asking the would be Benedicts if he realized the great risk he was imposing upon a man who was ignorant of the law official grant his request, and if he was aware of the fact that a heavy fine and long term of imprisonment awaited the perpetrator of such crime. After hypnotizing the love sick swain with the gravity of the situation and with much bowing and bow-ing, the squire would finally agree to sacrifice his scruples provided he were paid a sum large enough to justify his seeming the risk incurred. The price stipulated was always a big figure, require Beasley was a financial observer, and he unsuns fixed by him usually corresponded pretty accurately with the wallet of the bride groom.

Squire Beasley would accept nothing but cash or a draft on a New York bank. He was no mere "no lumpy, no money" man, but respect he differed materially from his predecessor. Squire Sheldon would accept a check or note in lieu of cash and even take him into the job.

Many of the elopers came in carriages, on horseback or on foot, but the majority of the runaway marriages took place on board the Gretna Green or on the ferry landing itself. Scarcely a day passed without some such incident. The squire's son Thomas was pilot of the Gretna Green, and as he is said to have received a commission on every bridal couple whom he hauled on the Ohio shore, it goes without saying that he was not idle during all those years. When an agitated and lovelorn couple came hurrying down to the ferryboat, with an infuriated father or guardian following close at their heels, it was Thomas Beasley who calmed their fears by the assurance that he would see could trouble a couple in search of the squire into believing that he was the man and he was generally left to perform the ceremony usually conducted in the squire was absent on the county seat, where he was frequently engaged in the trial of cases. He always went reluctantly. All Aberdeen folks were adepts in spotting dupers, and it was not a difficult matter for the latter to size up the practical joker and his keen companion. The selected couple were conducted to the back room in the office and the ceremony was rushed through with all possible dispatch. Squire Beasley was in his own opinion a public benefactor and he invariably refused to accept any fee for his services.

THE RESURRECTION.

Rev. Dr. Talmage's Easter Discourse to His Flock.

Some Costly Unbelief Updrawn in Connection With the Resurrection That May Set Christians Thinking Along New Lines.

The following Easter sermon was delivered by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage before his Washington congregation. It is based on the text:

She, supposing Him to be the gardener.—John xx., 15.

Here are Mary Magdalene and Christ just after His resurrection. For 4,000 years a grim and ghastly tyrant had been filling people and dragging them into his cold palace. He had a passion for human skulls. For 40 centuries he had been unhindered in his work. He had taken down lungs and queens and conquerors, and there was no limit to his force. In that cold palace there were shelves of skulls and pillars of skulls and altars of skulls, and even the chalices at the table were made of bleached skulls. To the skeleton of Adam he had added the skeleton of all the ages, and no one had disputed his right until one Good Friday, about 1897 years ago as near as I can calculate it, a mighty Stranger came to the door of that awful palace, rolled back the door, and went in, and seizing the tyrant threw him to the pavement and put upon the tyrant's neck the heel of triumph.

That mighty Stranger, exploring all the ghastly Goodness of the place, and walking through the labyrinths, and opening the dark cellars of mystery, and lurching under a roof the like of which were made of human bones—carrying for two days and one day, the nights very dark and the day very dismal, He seized the two chief pillars of that awful palace and rocked them until it began to fall, and then laying hold of the pendent iron gate, bolted it from its hinges, and marched forth crying: "I am the resurrection!" That event we celebrate this Easter morn. Dandelion as Bethesdan miracles of sanctification to the floral decoration which has set the place ablaze.

There are three or four things which the world and the church have not noticed in regard to the resurrection of Christ. First, our Lord in another's attire. Mary Magdalene, grief-stricken, stands by the rifled sepulchres of Christ, and turns around, hoping she can find the track of the sacrilegious resurrectionist who has dispoiled the grave, and she finds some one in mortuary apparel come forth as if to water the flowers, or uproot the weeds from the garden, or set to replanting the fallen rose-bushes, or to sweep the graveyard. His garments perhaps having the sign of the dust and the dirt of the occupation.

Mary Magdalene, on her face the coin of a fresh shower of weeping, turns on the workman, and charges Him with the desecration of the tomb, when lo! the Stranger responds, flinging His whole soul into the words which trouble with all the sweet rhythm of earth and Heaven, saying: "Mary!" In that peculiarity of accentuation all incognito fell off, and she found that instead of talking with an humble gardener of Asia Minor, she was talking with Him who was to wear the imperial garments of Heaven. Considerations the clusters of frankincense, the sunflower the chief of all, the morningglory and midnight aurora, finding terrace of beauty, leading Him, a rose-tinted wall with coronation roses and giants of battle. Blessed and glorious mistake of Mary Magdalene. "She, supposing Him to be the gardener." What does that mean? It means that we have an everyday apparel. Not on Sabbath morning is our most seemly apparel are we more attractive to Christ than we are in our every-day work-dress, rasping our sacrosanctity, sailing our mind, plowing our fields, tending the flying shuttles, mending the garments for our household, providing food for our families, or toiling with weary pen, or weary pencil, or weary chisel. A working-man clothed in working-day apparel for us is just everyday toil. Put it into the highest strain of this Easter anthem: "supposing Him to be the gardener."

If Christ had appeared at day-break with a crown upon His head, that would have seemed to suggest especial sympathy for monarchs; if Christ had appeared in chain of gold and with robe diamonded, that would have seemed to especial sympathy for the affluent; if Christ had appeared with soldier's sash and sword dangling at his side, that would have seemed to imply especial sympathy for warriors; but when I find Christ in gardener's habit, with perhaps the flakes of the earth and of the upturned soil upon His garments, then I spell it out that He has hearty and limitless sympathy with every-day work, and every-day anxiety, and every-day fatigue.

Roll it down in comfort all through these aisles. A working-day Christ in working-day apparel. Tell it in the darkest corridor of the prison, that to the poor maker. Tell it to the factory maid in most unqualified establishments at Lowell or Lancaster. Tell it to the wearer of roughest way ground in western bridleways. Tell it to the sewing woman, a stitch in the side for every stitch in the garment, some of their cruel employers having no right, to think that they will get through the door of Heaven any more than they could through the eye of a blacksmith needle which has just dropped on the bare floor from the pricked and bleeding fingers of the consumptive sewing girl. Away with your Pharisaic hypocrisy, nation, and soteriology of the Sanhedrim of Trent, and the metaphysics of religion which would freeze practical Christianity out of the world; but pass along this Gardener-God to all artisans that they may touch the hem of Hi said feel the thrill of the Christly brotherhood. Not supposing the man to be Cæsar, not supposing Him to be Socrates, but "supposing Him to be the gardener."

Oh, that is what helped Joseph Wedgwood, toiling amid the heat and the dust of the potteries, until he could make for Queen Charlotte the first royal table service of English manufacture. That was why Sir Richard Watt, scoffed at and caricatured, until he could put on wheels the thunderbolt of power which soars by day and by night in every furnace of the locomotive engine of America. That is what helped Hugh Miller, toiling amid the quarries of Cromarty, until every rock became to him a volume of the world's biography, and he found the footsteps of the Creator in the old red sandstone. Oh, the world wants a Christ for the office, a Christ for the kitchen, a Christ for the shop, a Christ for the banking house, a Christ for the garden, while spading and planting and irrigating the territory. Oh, of course we want to see Christ at last in royal robe and bediamonded, a celestial equestrian mounting the white horse, but from this Easter of 1897 in our last Easter on earth we most need to see Christ as Mary Magdalene saw Him at the daybreak, "supposing Him to be gardener."

Another thing which the church and the world have not noticed in regard to the resurrection of Christ is that He made His first post-mortem appearance to one who had been the worst-derived Mary Magdalene. One would have supposed He would have made His first posthumous appearance to a woman who had always been illustrious for goodness. There are saintly women who have always been saintly, saintly in girlhood, saintly in infancy, always Saintly. In nearly all our families there have been saintly aunts. In my family—since I was a little child Aunt Phebe in young, saintly Aunt Martha, or saintly Aunt Ruth. One always saintly. But not so was the one spoken of in Christ text.

While you are not to conform her with the repentant courtesan who had made her long locks do the work of towel at Christ's footwashing, you are not to forget that she was exorcised of seven devils. What an empire of demonology she must have been. What a chorus of all diabolism. Seven devils—two for the eyes and two for the hands, and two for the feet, and one for the tongue. Seven devils. Yet all these are subjugated, and now she is as good as once she was bad, and Christ honors her with the first posthumous appearance. What does that mean?

Why, it means for truest sinner greatest grace; it means those lowest down shall come perhaps highest up. It means that the clock that strikes 12 at midnight may strike 12 at midnoon; it means that the darkest God is seven times stronger than sin. Mary Magdalene the seven-devilled became Mary Magdalene the seven-angeled. It means that when the hand reads to six it has the right to read on to us what we have been. All He said to her was "Mary!" Many people having met her under such circumstances would have said: "Get me see, how many devils did you have?" one, two, three, four, five, six, seven. What a terrible piece you were when I first met you." The most of the Christian women in our city would have nothing to do with Mary Magdalene even after her conversion, lest some how they be compromised. The only thing I have to say against women is that they have not enough mercy for Mary Magdalene. Christ paid all debts, and all reminiscences, and all antiquation, and all pardon, and all comforts, and all Heaven into one word of four letters: "Mary." Mark you, Christ did not appear to one like Elizabeth, or Bible Hannah, or Bible Esther, or Bible Deborah, or Bible Vashti, but to Mary, not to a Mary against whom nothing was said, not to Mary the mother of Jesus, not to Mary the sister of Lazarus, but to a seven-devilled Mary.

There is a man seven-devilled—devil of scarlet, devil of pride, devil of hate, devil of lubricity, devil of falsehood, devil of cruelty, devil of impiety. What God can take them all away, seven or seventy, 1 rode over the new cantilever bridge that spans Niagara—a bridge 200 feet long, 800 feet of chasm from itself to itself. I walked over it without anxiety. Why? Because 24 locomotives and 32 cars laden with gravel had tested the bridge, thousands of people standing on the Canadian side, thundering and standing on the American side to applaud the achievement. And however long the train of our immortal interests may be we are to remember that God's bridge of mercy spanning the chasm of all our sins is fully tested by the awful tonnage of all the pardoned sin of all the ages, church militant standing on one bank, church triumphant standing on the other bank, and the long train of sinners called Mary that Christ made His first post-mortem appearance.

There is another thing that the world and the church have not observed in regard to the resurrection of Christ, that He made His first post-mortem appearance to one who had been the worst-derived Mary Magdalene. NASHVILLE READY FOR THE TENNESSEE CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION.

Fifteen Exhibition Buildings of Classic Architecture — The Unique Memphis Building. An Attractive Floral Display. A Midway to Be Called Vanity Fair.

Just outside Nashville, which lays claim to the proud title of "the Athens of the South," there has sprung up during the last few months a fairy white city such as mundi Hellenic poet-artists might have dreamed about, but the like of which has been seen but once in modern times. Its sole precedent was the marvelous white city which rose on the shores of Lake Michigan to receive the World's Fair. This one has been built into existence to house the Tennessee exposition, which the state has arranged to hold in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of its birth.

It is hardly a just comparison to describe the Tennessee Centennial exposition as a miniature world's fair, for, although its buildings may lack the grandeur which gave distinction to the Columbian exposition, they have the same classic beauty of outline and architectural perfection. This is due to the same method in constructing the Tennessee exposition buildings the same material has been used by means of which such fine effects were produced in Chicago. The possibilities of "staff," then discovered for the first time, have been again demonstrated.

Fifteen large buildings have been constructed of this material, and the same brilliant white effect which so delighted the crowds of visitors to the world's fair city is produced. But to this feature has been added a setting which really gives a view of a landscape in fairyland. The site of the exposition is a park of 200 acres, whose natural beauties have been enhanced by a thousand gardening artifices. For many months a gang, army of laborers has been at work on it. The result will be something of a surprise to those who visit the exposition. There are seven acres of smooth, green blue grass lawns, miles of flower beds and tangles of shrubbery, with skilled horticulturists in new pleasant pictures gardeners, approached by winding paths, and through which brook into fountains of novel design; rows of palm shade trees, and a dozen other features of natural beauty which have probably never before been seen in such profusion on exposition grounds.

Of the main buildings that facing the Court is the Parthenon, which is to be given up exclusively to the exhibits of fine arts. It is the only one of the exhibition buildings, and the most an exact reproduction of the Parthenon at Athens. Unlike the other buildings, it has not a wooden frame, but its walls are solidly constructed of brick, over the exterior of which is spread a thin coating of white "staff." The roof is also of white timber in its walls, the whole being surrounded by a row of stately Doric columns. But the roof is one big skylight.

The largest building, however, is Machinery hall, in which will be exhibited the manufactures and products of the mineral arts. It is in the shape of a T, the upright being 500 by 125 feet in dimensions, while the arms or wings are 100 feet wide. The height of its central dome is 175 feet. Then there are the Commerce building, the Women's building, the Negro building, the agricultural hall, the Children's building, the Administration building, and several others, all fine specimens of the Ionic and of the Corinthian order of the general type of Greek architecture, though each one is a distinctive design. Fifteen states have built exhibit building structures for their own exhibits, and there are many other edifices of various kinds to be erected.

Probably the one building which will attract the most attention is the Memphis building, which has been erected by the citizens of Shelby county as a temporary home for their exhibit of cotton, farm products and manufactures. Memphis has dug still deeper into the architectural resources and has copied not the old Greeks, but the old Egyptians for the design of its building. Memphis building is modeled in part after the great pyramid built by Cheops, called by that branch of learning the pyramid of Gizeh, in Egypt. The pyramid is 116 feet on the base and its slope is 100 feet to its perpendicular height. It has given up the pyramid form, and so only will it be unique and remarkable externally, but the interior will be unusual, being arranged on the exact imitation of the Egyptian school.

Beautiful and striking architectural effects are produced by a very, but simple, use of form to the Tennessee exposition will most appreciate, if I know the average man, well to be benefited expositions particularly. Beside this, while stretches of smooth lawn there will be flowers, flowers, flowers everywhere. The whole state of Tennessee is a veritable garden in spring anyway, but in this park have been massed the choicest and most beautiful of the state's efforts. In one design which the gardeners evolved work on the other day 1,000 Madonna lilies were set out. By the time the gates are thrown open, they will every one be in bloom. But this is only a single detail. There is the whole state of Tennessee to walk and beds of ornamental design filled with flowering plants without number.

Many novel features are planned for the interest and amusement of visitors. The stars and stripes will flash from the highest flagpole in America on the capitol. There is an aerial railway which will carry passengers in a basket for a quarter of a mile back along the line of the exposition. There is to be a Midway, too, only it will be known by a more appropriate name. Just adjoining the park there is a fine old beech which stood through the Civil war. There will be Beech Tree Park. The amusement features which the original Midway had will be there and a few more. There will be the largest Ferris wheel ever seen in the southern as well as a number of other rotisses. A big Ferris wheel on rails will run around and under a tunnel at Vanity Fair. There will be chances to "shoot the shoots," go up in balloons, ride on the scenic railway, go down in the air slide, get your fortunes taken and patronize a thousand and one fakirs and fakirs of every kind. The exposition gates will not be closed until Oct. 30.

The Gradual Return to Styles of Sixty Years Ago.

USE OF BLACK VELVET RIBBON.

It Is Very General Now and Recalls the Older Time—Some Novelties in Collars and Circles—Favorite Ornaments—Seasonable Gowns.

[Copyright, 1897, by American Press Association.]

The gradual return to the styles of 60 years ago progresses until the sleeve, but only in sleeves that are much larger is much to be added in such a way that we shall have grown familiar with the distinguishing marks before we are asked to accept the entire sleeve and costume. One of the first of the changes is the use of black velvet ribbon as the trimmings on gowns, capes and jackets. This has already shown itself in public, engage. Greek key pattern is in many cloths that may even good to be trickie. Over gray, black and white silk one sees rich. On public they tone and refine the often glaring colors, and on cream, ivory and the pale and yellowish gauze they are exquisite. On the brilliant green grass, light blues and purples, and white the silk or velvet adds a charm of handsome trimming, better and more refined than anything else could be.

In one picture I have a turquoise chiffon in cold color, with rows of 1½ inch wide velvet ribbon sewed at equal distances around the skirt and within ten inches of the belt. Another dress, that of moire in a pale blue, had rows of velvet ribbon in the same way, only at the bottom the ribbon was set one-eighth of an inch apart, and each one above was about twice further apart than the other, until at the waist line they were four or the inches apart. The effect of this was very rich. It appeared to be the topmost style.

A simpler fancy was wrought out on a gown of cutlaid vendôme cloth. Crepe were but two rows of the velvet ribbon, the width of one appeared. These were placed on the surface of plain bodice, leaving from the bottom of the skirt and extending all the way around. There was a wide Swiss belt of black velvet ribbon, fancy silver buckle at the left side, of unusually large dimensions. The upper portion of the bodice was made in a style quite popular with young ladies, resembling the Zouave jacket, having the back but half in deep blue folds. This particular one had three of these such trimmed in the velvet ribbon, and two rows of it on the left side, and was finished with a cream colored lace stock, with ruffled and pearls lace at the same. The trimming on the cape to the sleeves and that in the wrists was also of the velvet. Altogether the gown is very rich.

For a spring season, for late wear and summer also, I never saw so much made up in dressing as there is now. There are many sets of braided and soutache ornaments. They are all prepared ready to be put on, and in all the colors that may be used in fashionable costume that no one would believe possible, while very many of the new cutlaid velvet ribbons are fancy, and are far reaching to everybody. There are figures, jacket, runners and half a dozen colors in the velvet and narrow ones. It did not occur to me that any Montague Murphy—(concealed) Ah! there he you with that haughty beauty—no hated rival, I'll listen.

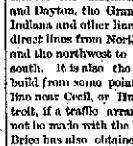
Haughty Beauty—(astronomically inclined) How brightly the stars shine to-night. You ruddy planet is Mars, and you know—

Montague Murphy—(still concealed) Hark to the fairy story she's giving him. Does she think because her Pa owns a house and lot in Harlem, her Ma's got real estate in th' sky?



The happiest moment in a woman's life is when she feels for the first time the stirring of motherhood. Thousands of women raise this greatest, sweetest of human hopes, and live out dreary, babeless, loveless lives, because of ill-health. Every woman should realize the supreme importance of healthy vigor and strength of the organs distinctly feminine. Unless a woman is willing to be that least envied of her sex, a childless woman, she cannot afford to neglect the ills that sap her health.

The best known and most successful medicine for the cure of all diseases and weaknesses of the female reproductive organs is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Hundreds of homes that for years remained childless now ring with childish laughter as a result of the beneficial effects of the "Favorite Prescription." It is the preparation of an eminent and skilful specialist, Dr. R. V. Pierce. For years it has been used by Dr. Pierce in his daily practice in the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., the greatest institution of the kind in the world. It has relieved thousands of women from suffering and pain and permanently cured them of the necessary performance of the duties of maternity.

W. R. Malcolm, of Kaskel, Clay County, Arkansas, writes: "For two years my wife has been bed of baby girl born to us. My wife took four bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and also your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and also your 'Pleasant Pellets' and during the important period of child confinement was not laid up one day. Has not had to touch a fee since baby was born. Our child will be one year of age the last week in May, and has been sick a day. Has not had so much as a cold. It is a fact, sir, and we have put [illegible] to go as often as twice at night since her birth. My wife has not been sick a day in two years or three days after the child was born, although the midwife threatened to put her to bed, as would be the case. Our neighbors remarked to me that they thought my wife the shortest time woman they ever saw. We think our good health due to the use of your family medicines."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them.

SHOP AND RAIL.

The Wabash Takes Off a Switch Engine.

Calvin S. Brice Plans a Great Railway System and Sets About Its Construction.

Hour—Local Gossip.

In furtherance of the retrenchment policy which has recently been adopted by the Wabash company, the services of one of the switching engines, No. 167, at this point, has been dispensed with. The order to do this went into effect this morning, and by it an engineer and fireman are temporarily out of work. The switchmen were placed in other crews, making three men with an engine, and will work as usual. Business on the Wabash has fallen off greatly during the past month and the decrease in the earning this month this and other reductions in the operating expenses an absolute necessity.

BRICE'S GREAT SCHEME.

A Chicago jobber says that Senator Calvin S. Brice is now preparing not only to streamline his Chicago and Cincinnati lines by securing a shorter outlet to Chicago than he has at present, and better terminal facilities at Cincinnati, but is bringing about a combination that will make his Cincinnati, Jackson and Mackinaw and other lines which he controls and proposes to build or acquire dangerous competitors for the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, the Grand Rapids and Indiana and other lines by securing direct lines from Northern Michigan and the northwest to the east and south. It is also the intention to build from some point on the main line near Cecil, or Hudson, to Detroit, if a traffic arrangement cannot be made with the Wabash. Mr. Brice has also obtained control of the Detroit and Mackinaw railroad, which runs from Bay City to Alpena, and he has under construction an extension from Alpena to Mackinaw, which is more than half completed. It is contemplated to connect the Cincinnati, Jackson and Mackinaw with the Detroit and Mackinaw railroad by means of an extension from Jackson, Mich., to Bay City by way of Lansing. From Mackinaw the Brice system will find an outlet to the northwest over the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railroad, of which Mr. Brice is vice president.

BRIEF MENTION.

Joseph Richlin, an employe of the Rose blacksmith shop, is sick.

After May 1st the headquarters of the Lima Northern will be in Detroit.

Wabash engine 174 has been turned out of the shops after being repaired.

Railroad rates to Niagara Falls will be less this year than last and the limit will be longer.

Harry Young has taken his place as the berich in the electric works again. He was married recently.

During the past week one coach and four baggage cars were renovated and varnished at the east car shops.

A. Rost, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, went to West Lake this morning to spend a few days in fishing.

Machinist James Olice, jr., has been temporarily transferred from the Wabash shops in this city to those in Ashley.

James Gould has returned from an eastern trip and this morning resumed his place in the office of the electric light works.

William Zoutemeister, of the electric works, has gone to Richmond, Ind., to spend Sunday with his parents, who reside in that city.

On account of private business which demands his attention, Conductor Belloy, of the Nickel Plate, has taken a few days' vacation.

Two dynamos, each of eighty are light capacity, left the electric works today, one being billed to St. Marys, Ohio, and the other to New Castle, Pa.

A. J. Dawson, W. T. Marks and A. L. Blake, machinists in the Pittsburg shops, went down to Rome City this morning to fish a few days.

Engineer William Buenel and Fireman Frank Crawford now have charge of Nickel Plate engine 24 in the through freight service on the third district.

Tom Hibbins, the state roofer, and his crew will go to Chicago next Monday to make some repairs on the Pennsylvania round house at Fourteenth street.

Nickel Plate Engineer John Snyder and Fireman O. L. Shoaff and D. Markle are on the absentee list. Shoaff is sick and the others are merely taking a rest.

Nickel Plate Conductor Hoover went to Bellevue yesterday to take the short run out of that city vice Conductor Conley, who has asked for a few days' lay off.

Under the proposed new time schedule the Nickel Plate, the West Shore and the Fitchburg roads will shorten their time two hours between Chicago and Boston.

R. T. McDonald came home this morning, accompanied by Mr. Rogers, of Cleveland, who is connected with the Adams-Bagnall company, a firm engaged in the manufacture of electric lamps.

Ed. Dillon, who recently joined the ranks of the benedicts, has returned from his wedding trip and Dale Sowning resumed his place at the desk in the office of Master Mechanic B. Fitzpatrick.

Engine 16 is laid on through freight on the Nickel Plate, after being thoroughly repaired at the Stony Island shops. She is in charge of Engineer D. McKee and Fireman and John Tracey.

The section men on the main line of the Lake Erie and Western, who have been receiving $1.10 per day, now demand an increase of fifteen cents, and it is stated that a number have gone out until the request is granted.

The Wabash management is giving more attention to encouraging industries on its line, laying side tracks to manufactories and other industries where there is any prospect of getting business, which will justify such an expenditure.

Bellevue Gazette: "Conductor Gillespie is looking for a fine opera house site, and says if the right price is made he and a couple of Marion capitalists will erect a handsome auditorium building here. Allright, Dan, you choose the site, Barkes is ready."

General Superintendent Gibson, of the Baltimore and Ohio, in company with division superintendents, is going over the lines arranging for the tonnage basis of rating locomotives, which goes into effect May 1.

George Hage, of the transportation department of the Erie lines, with headquarters at Huntington, Ind., who has been afflicted with paralysis, is to be taken to Hot Springs, Ark., for treatment.

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers will give an entertainment and dance in Brackett's hall Thursday evening, April 29. The program is very pleasing and will be published the first of next week.

J. B. Arnuck has returned from Altoona, Pa., where he went several days ago on railroad business. He will go to Columbus next week to look over the company's new passenger station, of which he is to be the chief engineer and electrician.

The Pittsburg shops are closed this afternoon with the exception of the passenger department and some of the machines in the blacksmith department. Those employes who take an interest in base ball attended the game between the Concordia college boys and the machine shop's nine.

There is the best of authority for stating that there is no truth in the report of a Terre Haute paper that H. E. Miller, superintendent of the Vandalia main line, is to retire. No other official changes are in contemplation or those lines by the receiver. Mr. Miller is having some trouble with his eyes, but nothing of a serious character.

Conductors on several roads have received instructions, very emphatic in character, to collect fares of all children over twelve years of age, and half fare between five and twelve years. The fact that the railroad company is just as liable from accident to a child as a grown person, under a recent decision of a court in an eastern state, has led to the stricter enforcement of rules.

Arrangements have been completed by the Canadian government for the construction of the Crow's Nest Pass road into the gold fields of the Kootenia region. The Canadian Pacific road has undertaken to build the new road. For doing it it is to receive from the government a subsidy of $10,000 a mile, or about $1,250,000 in all. In return for this subsidy the Canadian Pacific is not only to build the new road, but allow other roads to run their trains over it. It is also to relinquish some of the special privileges secured to it by its original charter.

BASE BALL.

The Team Will be in Fair Condition for the Opening.

A Michigan League Club Wants a Battery and an Infielder—No Decision—Game on Tuesday.

The Fort Wayne ball club has had one week of hard work and as a result the players will be in fair shape for the opening game with Toledo next Tuesday. There are several sore arms in the aggregation, but they are improving rapidly under the warm weather, and Manager Cooke is confident that his team will be able to put up as good ball in the beginning as any club in the Inter-State league. The line up of the club is determined upon and will be as follows: Kihn, first base; Morrissey, second base; Haggerty, third base; Cooke, short stop; King, left field; Robinson, center field; McElvitt, right field; Campbell, catcher; Wayne or Darby, pitcher.

President Moyer has received a letter from a manager of one of the Michigan league towns asking for the loan or release of a battery and an infielder. Those are just the surplus players the Fort Wayne club have on hand, and if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the players three of them may go to the Michigan town. Funkhouser has an offer from South Bend, but the local management does not care to release him at present.

Deer in Fort Wayne there is a bowler at work. Rain, hail, mud, snow and sleet is the result. That team has had but one practice game so far and it is doubtful if they get another.—Dayton Press. Wait until the Daytons meet Fort Wayne, then they'll think the town had practice.

"Cupid" Childs says that the Toledo boys are the hardest hitting lot that the Clevelands have gone up against this year. He says Torreyson's Dayton team is a stiff one, but not so good at the bat as Strobel's boys. He predicts that they will be the pennant winners. "Cupid" has also said for years that Cleveland would win the pennant, but they didn't.

Mitchell, who catches for Fort Huron, was one of the best men of the Interstate league last year, and as a coacher is excelled by none. His jollying behind the bat always makes him a mark for the bleachers, and his good humor takes with the crowd. It is worth the price of admission alone to see and hear him.—Dayton Herald. The idea of Mitchell being mentioned as one of the best in a league with such catchers as Shaw, Croiger, O'Meara and Zimmer! Shades of Silver Flint!—Wheeling News.

"The tree, in whose branches fifty boys and men perched themselves yesterday afternoon and from which point of vantage they viewed the ball game, equally as well situated as if in the grand stand, belongs to President A. R. Ludlow of the polko and fire board, and in speaking of the proposition which had been submitted to him to the effect that he have it cut down he said: 'That question bothers me. I was a boy myself once and often did not have even five cents, and I dislike very much to deprive these youngsters of this privilege while they so dearly love. When they are up in that tree, to be sure they are not into mischief.' Turning to Chief Van Tassell who was present he said: 'Chief, if you will furnish an officer to keep the men out of that tree we will do the right thing by the youngsters.' Mr. Van Tassell replied that it was his business to chase the boys up a tree. The agreement was made and the tree will stand."—Springfield Sun.

TRUMPED UP CHARGES.

Pension Agent Spencer Goes to Washington to Investigate Them.

(By Associated Press.)

Pension Agent Spencer returned yesterday from Washington. Mr. Spencer has investigated the charges that have been trumped up against him, and finds that there is not only nothing in them, but they are absolutely ridiculous. The charges were preferred by Dave Olive, who for the past three years has been a leach on the republican organization. He was elected assistant clerk of the house in 1895, and after adjournment of the legislature refused to go back home and go to work. He hung around Indianapolis till the campaign began and then cemented the life out of Chairman Gowdy till he was placed on the pay roll in the state headquarters. It was supposed when the campaign was over that he would go to work, but he is still hanging around the city and has interfered into a conspiracy with Mr. Laighby, who is to succeed Mr. Spencer, to have Mr. Spencer ousted before his term expires by preferring a lot of charges, the truth of which does not figure in the matter. Dave Olive was the most natural man to do this work and he has been promised another place if he succeeds in getting Mr. Spencer out before the expiration of his term. In the meantime Olive is being poisoned.

Next Tuesday evening there will be an open meeting of the ministers and stewards of the Fort Wayne district at the Wayne street Methodist Episcopal church. Addresses will be delivered by Rev. F. M. Stone and Rev. S. Light. The public is invited. Considerable business of importance to the district will be transacted at this meeting.

Best Spring Remedy in the World—It Makes People Well.

There is one true specific for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system, and that is Paine's celery compound, so generally prescribed by physicians. It is probably the most remarkable remedy that the scientific research of this country has produced. Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college, first prescribed what is now known the world over as Paine's celery compound, a positive cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuralgia, rheumatism, all nervous diseases and kidney troubles. For the latter Paine's celery compound has successfully again and again where everything else has failed.
